

Optimal route for waste water to central basin in the Maas Waal area

Optimal route for the waste water of three different companies in the Maas Waal area. The routes are optimized based on the cost layer as can be seen on the map. This cost layer included data about land and water use and a corresponding cost value for each of these classes. On the map the factories that create the waste water are visualized, just as the basin where the water should end up.

